Opalescent Glass

The opal: nature captures fire inside a cold, smooth jewel. Opalescent glass is named for this mysterious gem; it recreates the opal's wondrous effects with secret ingredients and a skillful balance of chilling and reheating. After allowing molten glass to cool slightly, the opaque white is coaxed from inside by the glassmaker's fire, trapping a bit of that fire forever in every piece of beautiful Fenton opalescent glass.

F E N T O N

Sea Mist Opalescent

Skillfully fired to develop the pattern, this translucent, milky glass is synonymous with Fenton, America's foremost maker of colored glass. Reminiscent of the pounding surf, encased in the molten glass forever.

Red Carnival

In unusual designs and decorative patterns, some new and some from the distant past. One of the most sought after of antique carnival glass colors that commands the highest prices on the collector's market. Created in Fenton's inimitable style to bring beauty into the homes of America and to bring joy to the Red Carnival Glass collector.

Fenton Red Carnival is made with Ruby glass and iridized with a special metallic salt formula. Occasionally there will be unusual colorations because of the way the ruby strikes and some pieces will have an amberina effect. These variations will be searched out by the collector as being the most rare of the collection.

Iridescent glass, the original name for Carnival glass, was one of The Fenton Art Glass Company's major products from 1907 until 1920.

The Artistry of Cranberry and Cranberry Opalescent

3265 CR
Pitcher, 32 oz.
Spanish
Lace
Optic (New)

Truly the most unique of glassmaking accomplishments! Fenton Cranberry is achieved by a lengthy process requiring artistry, skill, technology and team work. Working together as a team, it takes up to 18 skilled craftsmen to make a basket or pitcher!

1

Cranberry glass begins with long Ruby Rolls containing gold which are made and heated in ovens for approximately 12 hours. A small bud is then snipped off of the roll and attached to the end of a hollow blow pipe. It is smoothed and shaped to give it a uniform shape for even color distribution.

The Ruby bud is then taken to a glass tank where a layer of crystal glass (or French opalescent glass for Cranberry opalescent) where a layer of crystal is gathered over top. The blocker then rolls the molten gob in hot soapy water to give it uniformity and lubrication. He then blows the first air bubble into the glass.

3-4

The gob is then reheated and blown into a spot mould to put the optic pattern on the piece. (4)-The opalescence comes out when the French opalescent is heated. So the protruding pattern receives more heat than the sunken areas causing the molecules to grow and turn white. This gives us the opalescent pattern.

After the optic pattern has been put on the piece, it is taken to the main blower. It is reheated and dropped into the final forming mould and blown out into the shape of the mould.

6-7

Once the piece has been blown into the forming mould, the bubble (called the overblow) is scraped off the top and reheated. It is given to the finisher who puts the ruffled crimp on the edge. It is then given to the handler to apply the handle if it is a basket or pitcher.
