Fenton

The wonderful world
of handmade glass

■ Dipping into the furnace with the blowpipe to pick up the 2000° molten globule.

■ Shaping on the marver gives the molten glass its first crude form.

■ The blower's face and hands express extreme dedication to his craft.

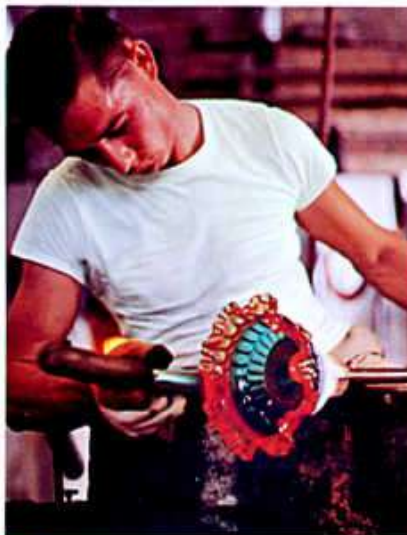

■ The molten glass going into the hand-carved mold.

America's finest glass in color-
handmade by Fenton

■ A long-handled "snap" holds this thumbprint bowl just before it will be "warmed-in" at the "gloryhole" to make the glass workable. Only the experienced eye of the "warming-in boy" knows when it is hot enough to be shaped into a basket by the "finisher."

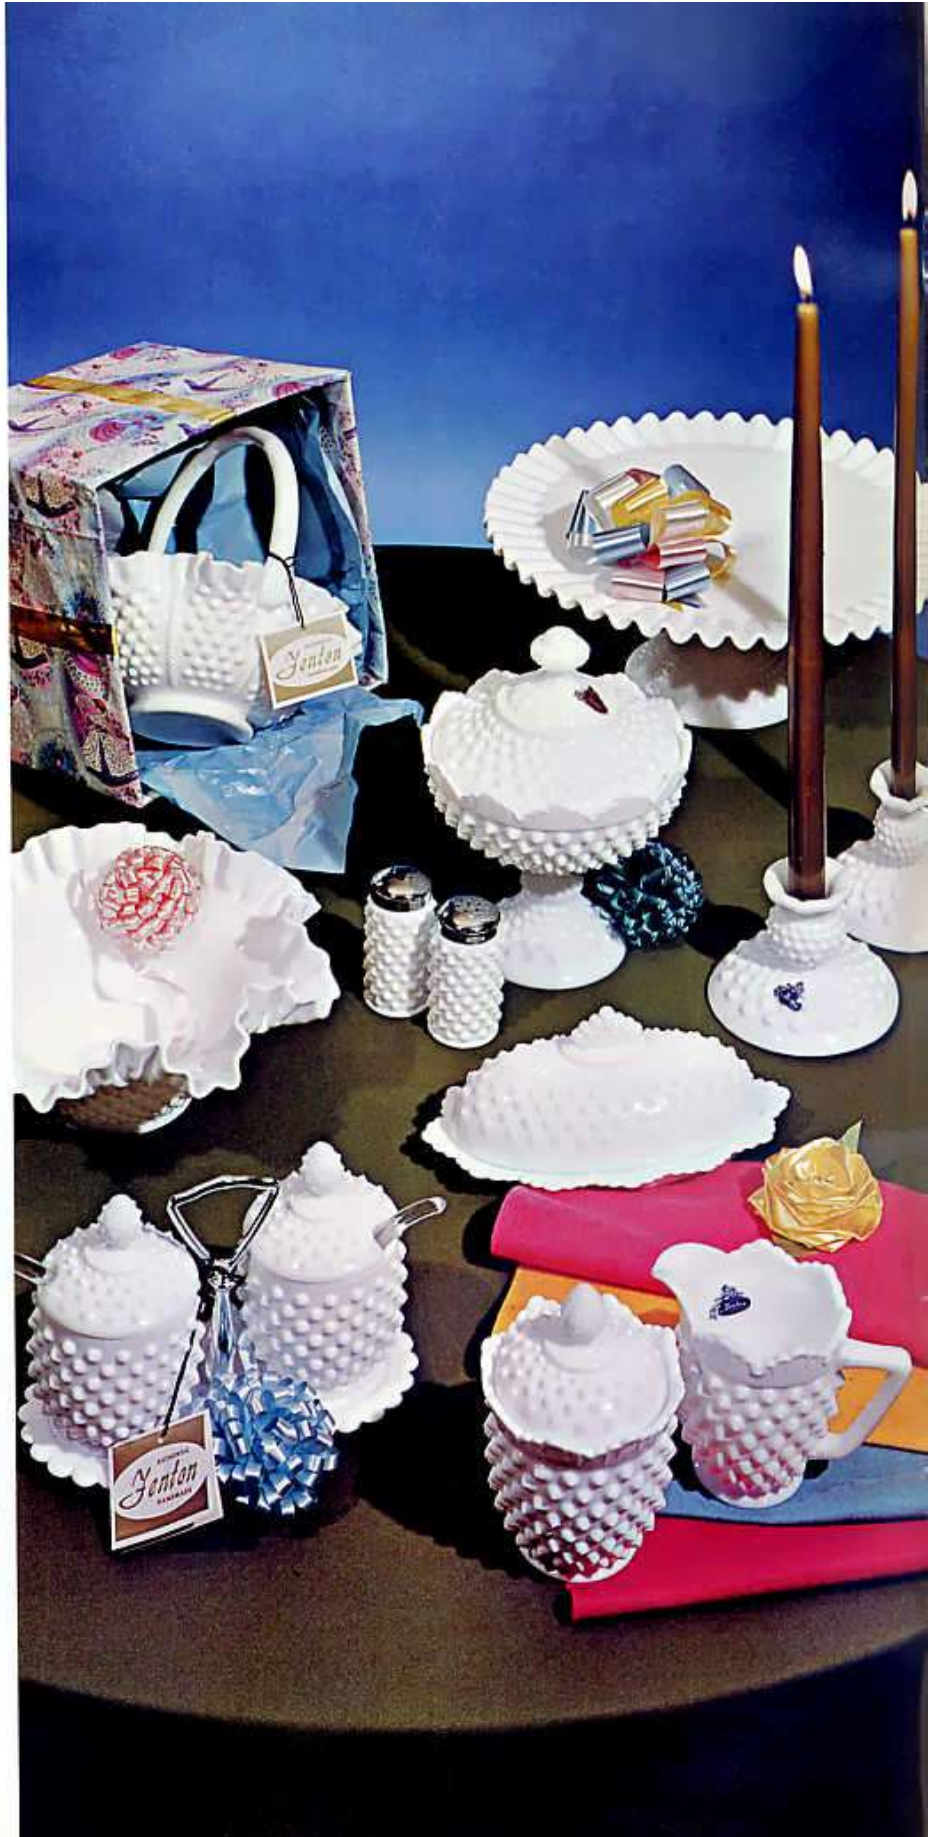

■ This "finisher," or "gaffer," has just crimped the thumbprint bowl and worked it into a basket shape. You can still see the red-hot heat in the outer edges of the bowl. It is now ready for the handler.

■ A molten ribbon of glass becomes a delicate basket handle. The glass is carefully shaped by hand tooling and cools into a graceful arc. All handles on Fenton Glass are attached in this same age-old manner.

Fenton Hobnail Bowls and Candleholders

Your customers know and love Fenton Hobnail for its warmth, charm and traditional beauty. Yet Hobnail seems forever fresh and new.

In milk glass and color, its simple unobtrusive appeal matches the quality of Fenton workmanship. The name, derived from the hobnails pioneer Americans wore on their shoes, is beautifully descriptive.

Fenton proves expensive-looking gifts needn't cost a lot!

At right is an assortment to delight giver and receiver. Each is different . . . distinctive . . . in the bright, happy mood of an old-fashioned sampler.

To sell more, explain how the little shoes, top hat, vases and dinner bells could have graced great-grandmother's whatnot shelf.

Below are two more American favorites: the Fenton Hobnail Milk Glass footed cakeplate and serving plate. Both have pretty crimped edges, still another distinguishing mark of Fenton.

Fenton Hobnail serving pieces

Show your customers how these Fenton pieces add color and personality to casual or formal china. Display them to dramatize a breakfront or corner cupboard.

The Hobnail pattern is formed by blowing or pressing the glass into a mold which has a series of carefully hand-sculpted indentations. They become the raised part, or hobnails, in the finished piece.

Fenton Hobnail adds spice to a table setting

Sugars, creams, cruets, salts and peppers and butter dishes are hand-fashioned to give them a cheery warmth. Show your customers how to mix and match them with their best china or everyday dishes for decorative interest and contrast. Hobnail also makes wonderful gifts for any special day because they go so happily with any table setting.

The very strong sales appeal of this lovely glassware is due to its versatility, its beauty, and to the many practical uses that can be made of it.

Fenton accessories for dining, display, smoking

Demonstrate afresh the beauty and versatility of Fenton Hobnail.

While your sales indicate that Hobnail is becoming more and more popular in color, this is plus business because Fenton Hobnail Milk Glass continues to be the outstanding seller.

Fenton's complete line of ashtrays, lighters and smoking accessories is bold and bright... meant for the most masculine den, study or family room. Here are the gifts you have needed for Father's Day, Dad's Christmas present, graduation and groomsman's gifts. A permanent display of these masculine gifts in Hobnail is also a helpful reminder for birthday and anniversary gifts.

Hobnail comports, bonbons, nut dishes and candy jars

Sweets are sweeter when they're served in Fenton ware! Besides their customary use . . . for candy, nuts, mints and fruits . . . these pieces make excellent focal points for centerpieces. Display them attractively on an uncrowded counter or shelf, adding real nuts, mints, Christmas ornaments or permanent flower arrangements for suggested uses.

Hobnail baskets

These baskets have a light, lively look . . . but their sales are nothing to take lightly. They become even more popular each year. Customers use them for candy, pansies or any short-stemmed flower, Easter arrangements, Christmas ornaments, nuts or mints. No wonder they're best sellers.

Fenton Thumbprint

another Early American favorite

The appeal of Fenton Thumbprint is rivaled only by Fenton Hobnail. The beguiling Thumbprint pattern originated about 1860.

Fenton offers so many pieces in Thumbprint that many people set a beautiful table in Thumbprint alone.

When you sell a china pattern, suggest Thumbprint for the complementary glassware.

Thumbprint Decorative Pieces

Suggest that your customers complement Thumbprint table settings with matching candlesticks, serving bowls and comports. Fenton offers several glowing colors to choose from.

Brides especially like Thumbprint, because the pattern is available in so many different pieces. Keep a registry in your store to record the gifts selected for each bride. This avoids duplication and encourages additional sales.

Fenton Thumbprint for smokes, sweets, flowers

Fenton Thumbprint is correct whatever the event. Sell the beautiful Anniversary Bowl at left to recall a wedding day or any special day you wish to have remembered. Suggest the tall bud vases below for Christmas, birthday, Mother's Day or any gift occasion.

The vases are made in an especially interesting way. A white-hot wine glass is hand-swung in baton-like fashion at the end of a long metal rod until the desired length and shape is achieved. Show your customers how no two vases are ever exactly the same height or shape.

Petticoat Glass

Fenton

Fenton Silver Crest Petticoat Glass

Silver Crest, a Fenton exclusive, combines the simplicity of milk glass with the sophistication of crystal. A delicate crystal edging is added to pure white milk glass after its basic form has been blown or shaped.

Applying this edging is the job of Fenton's most skilled craftsmen, guided only by a deft hand and a trained eye. Call attention to your customers that this uniquely beautiful glass is made only by Fenton.

Vasa Murrhina

Fenton

Many centuries ago glassmakers discovered a way to fuse different colors of glass into singularly beautiful glassware. Their artistic efforts inspired an era of imaginative glassmaking which reached its peak in the famed Vasa Murrhina glass made at Sandwich, Massachusetts, in the nineteenth century.

Fenton now brings you Vasa Murrhina, a glass so complicated to make that it can be produced only in a limited amount. Because of its intricate color patterns each piece is an individual creation unlike any other.

Something Else

Fenton

Sure to please the hard to please! These whimsical Fenton gifts are excellent sellers season after season. Be sure you can share the rewards by keeping them attractively displayed throughout your shop. These are great impulse items.

The molten glass going into the hand-carved mold will emerge as beautiful Fenton Glass

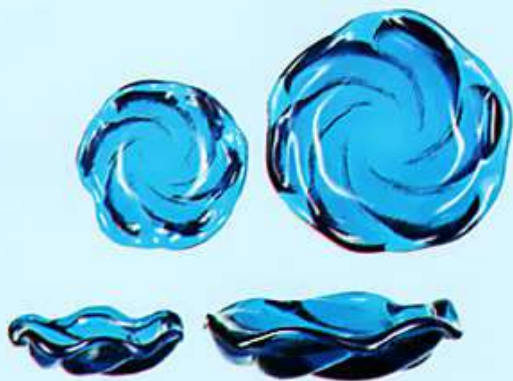

Something Else Again

These ashtrays and matching lighters are bold, debonair... right for a masculine club-room, den or study. They form a striking contrast to the tiny turtle ring tree which, in its own winsome way, is equally appealing to customers.

Fenton Glass Sales Set New Records

1965 and 1966 have again seen record sales set by Fenton . . . sales that outstripped our most optimistic projections.

One reason for this significant growth is we reevaluate the entire line each year and replace slower moving items with exciting new pieces. In 1966 we added almost 100 new items and for '67 we are introducing another 100, including 13 highly profitable new lamps.

This is not done quickly or casually. Before any new design or pattern is accepted, several dozen possible replacements are carefully considered. We consider your suggestions. We consult our designers. We run consumer tests.

In this way, guesswork is all but eliminated. And therefore, any new item is almost certain to be an outstanding seller.

There's another reason for Fenton's continued success. Again this year, full-color ads in House Beautiful, House and Garden, American Home and Good Housekeeping will presell Fenton to your customers.

Stock Fenton with confidence. Display it with pride. Sell it with confidence. Order it early!

Ruby Overlay

Explain to your customers how the subtle glimmering ruby red in Fenton Ruby Overlay is achieved by adding real coin gold to the glass and further how each piece is encased in faultless crystal.

Traditional Lamps

Fenton

Fenton Traditional Lamps ... "a thing of beauty is a joy forever."

Sales of the handsome traditional lamps we introduced in January, 1966, have far exceeded our most optimistic expectations.

Dealers throughout the country have ordered, reordered and reordered. Many tell us the lamps virtually sell themselves—especially when used as supplemental lighting for display areas. They report such lighting lends an inviting, hearthside charm that stimulates sales of other items displayed nearby. Leaving several lighted after closing time is another good selling idea. Even after you've closed the doors, they will keep your shop right on selling.

Because of their popularity, we have added several new lamps and beautiful new color combinations to the line.

If you do not already sell Fenton Traditional Lamps, you will find it profitable to do so. Why not order now?

The complete lamp is listed by Underwriters Laboratories, Inc. and bears the coveted Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval.
