1993 Connoisseur Collection

Fenton's 1993 Connoisseur Collection recreates styles and techniques from the "Golden Age of Glass". Inspired by the famous glass designers of the 19th Century - L.C. Tiffany, Handel and Pairpoint - this collection demonstrates Fenton's skill in the production of rare glass.

A. Made of Ruby Stretch glass, this bowl is made with Ruby glass that has been sprayed with metallic salts while hot. It is then reheated and the edges turned back to stretch the metallic finish on the surface. The beautiful authentic gold scrollwork was designed by Martha Reynolds.

B. This perfume bottle is made of Rosalene glass which contains pure gold. "Rose Trellis" was designed by Frances Burton and is highlighted with genuine gold.

C. Made of Persian Blue Opalescent, this vase is carefully cooled and reheated before blowing to develop the delicate translucent color. "Victorian Roses" was designed by Martha Reynolds and features an amethyst lustre collar.

D. This vase is made of Plum glass which has been sprayed with metallic salts while still hot. "Leaves of Gold" was designed by Martha Reynolds to be sandcarved deeply into the surface of the glass. It is carved in repeated steps to achieve the shading on the berries and leaves.

E. This Reverse Painted Shade is from an original Handel mould and the painting technique is true to the method used by Handel. Multiple painting and firing steps are required to create "Spring Woods", designed by Frances Burton.

Favrene Glass

F. & G. The treatment used on these two pieces is called Favrene which was first developed as Blue Favrite by L.C. Tiffany. This glass contains cobalt and silver and is sensitive to the slightest variations in heating. (F) This collection marks the first use of the owl mold. (G) The decorated Favrene vase, an amphora in a decorative brass stand, was designed by Martha Reynolds and features genuine gold highlights.

Autumn Gold

Inspired by the deep red-gold tones of an amber jewel, Fenton has captured this beautiful color in a lead-free version of the amber colored glasses made in France.

Autumn Gold Opalescent is a cased glass with French opalescent gathered over top of Autumn Gold. The glass is then blown into a ribbed optic mould, chilled, reheated and blown to its final shape. It is the chilling and reheating that "strikes" the rib pattern a lovely translucent white.
